1) BACKGROUND AND RATIONALE

EDCOM 2 highlights the urgent need for evidence-based interventions, teacher capacity-building, and holistic early learning programs to address persistent gaps in reading, comprehension, and language acquisition at the foundational levels.

Recognizing the central role of strong foundational skills in literacy, numeracy, language, and problem-solving in achieving long-term academic success, and building on the success of the 1st Early Childhood Educators Summit - which focused on global trends and innovative practices - this year's summit emphasizes practical, research-based strategies that directly enhance classroom practice.

The 2nd Early Childhood Educators Summit brings together teachers, school leaders, and early childhood advocates to strengthen their skills in facilitating foundational learning in the early years. This two-day summit focuses on practical strategies for developing literacy, numeracy, and early STEM skills among young learners. Participants will engage in expert-led sessions, hands-on workshops, and collaborative discussions designed to translate research into effective classroom practice.
